iii) Introduction (theme)

The discipline of LIS is undergoing paradigmatic changes in view of the increasing digitisation of resources. Information resources that were earlier available in print form are now available in electronic form in majority. Acquiring these resources and making them available for use, involves challenges. ICT enabled dissemination is important. Usage of the resources is an important issue in view of the heavy investment made in acquiring these. Libraries need to design innovative services that are effective and efficient too. IPR has to be kept in mind while offering services. LIS professionals should be aware of the increasing resources that are free, and paid also. Open access resources need to be popularised. Data access, organisation and effective use are also gaining importance. LIS professionals need to be trained and imparted competencies to manage data and information, modern libraries, information centres and knowledge centres. Online STP would enable participants from far and wide areas to participate in the programme at their convenience.

iv) Objectives/ Learning Outcomes

The six days training programme focussed on the following issues and outcomes:

- Active learning trends and the changing library.
- Trends in scholarly communication.
- Research data management.

viii) Brief Proceedings (inaugurated by), including Activities Completed and achievement of Learning Outcomes.

There were 22 sessions in the STP on varied topics of current interest. Resource persons were from different areas, who participate actively in the field of LIS.

STP began with a discussion on the developments in the environment and the response from libraries and LIS professionals to bring changes in the library.

'Digital' is the buzz word in learning, teaching, information today. Hence there was a session on digital education and the wide opportunities for librarians. Digital library is the need of the hour, every library would like to design a digital library. There was a session on digital libraries which was practical with a hands on session where all the participants followed steps of designing a digital library following the resource person.

The changing user behavior and needs was very well discussed in the session on active learning trends and changing library landscape. A very detailed discussion on the how libraries can design services for the changing learning scenario of active learning, helping learners to inculcate analytical thinking skills and providing to the society innovative thinking citizens. NEP 2020 and the role of libraries brought to fore the scope of activities for librarians in the implementation of NEP. Librarians have been managing electronic resources for a long time but are facing issues of managing them which were debated in the session on ERM.

The session "Libraries, Discovery and the Catalogue: Scale, Workflow and Attention" was devoted to discussing the tools, techniques to bring to the attention of users everything of use to them. Customised active service can be provided with the tools available to us. The resource person showed examples how to achieve this. User wants to access information on mobile today on the go, hence we had a session on mobile based services where there was hands on session of generating QR codes and providing services based on it.

Space management in libraries is very important in view of the changes to be made for re designing the services. The session on the theme gave useful insights and possible solutions to it. Stock verification is the duty of a librarian and remains a topic of discussion, hence a session was devoted to it and received well by the participants.

Data management is another trend concerning researchers and policy makers as well. The topic was taken up in three sessions covering different aspects. Librarians need to guide and assist users in this regard. The sessions provided clarification and foresight to the librarians to go ahead to take up this responsibility.

Living in the Knowledge era, where knowledge in its different forms needs to be tapped, organized, preserved and used. There were three sessions, one on its application and role played by librarians, one on traditional KM and the other on intangible KM. Human resources in an organisation form its most important resource. Their development is the main factor for the development of the organization. There were two sessions on the competencies required for the LIS professionals and how can they be acquired and sharpened.

A Google classroom was created where ample reading resources and references were provided to the participants. All lectures were recorded and ppts were provided to the participants.
